How can we be more Youth Shaped?
Think about the different sections... how does this vary from Squirrels to Explorers?

As young people are developing their skills, you can:

- Provide them with accessible and inclusive opportunities to plan their own programmes.
- Encourage them to take the lead on elements of that programme.
- Empower them to represent their views and ideas so that, ultimately, every decision we make has their best interests at heart.

Being youth-shaped today in Scouts

Youth shaped is nothing new in Scouts. For us, it started in 1907 and it's been happening ever since.

It's about young people working together with volunteers to shape, influence, and lead their adventure.

Today, youth-shaped Scouts forms a major part of our Skills for Life strategy, alongside inclusion, community impact and growth.

A young person who knows how to shape their own Scouts experience through planning, leading and representing has a powerful skill that'll carry them through life.

In Scouts, youth shaped is about:

- Creating an environment where young people can take chances and learn from their mistakes

Plan: This badge is all about thinking creatively, working together and planning some exciting activities for your programme.

Lead: Now it's time to take the lead – think supporting others, delivering your programme and nights away.

Represent: Think about how you'll represent your group – you could engage your community, invite some friends to join the fun or chat to your Trustee Boards.

Central Badge: This badge is all about thinking about what you want to achieve, setting a goal and making it happen.
